

National identity by birth cohort

Unification–independence position by birth cohort

The two components of the China factor. Identity is modeled as causally prior to policy preference, following the standard ordering in the Taiwan politics literature. Whether the cohort gradient is media-driven or a socialization effect is separable with the identity intervention (Fig 8) — a question the US design cannot pose.