

Media effects: United States and Taiwan

Identical method, different political context

Method held constant: same DAG logic, same LCA procedure, same validation suite, same estimands. Differences are attributable to context rather than method. Kao (2026) predicts larger Taiwanese persuasion effects, since partisan identities there remain more fluid than in established two-party democracies.